Mastering a Studio Recording or No Mastering

Can someone tell me why a Music Studio specializing in recording vocals, would not give you a finish mastered product vs a studio recording. Is it the studio in particular that just don't do master recordings? I would think a studio would want to give there clients the best possible product possible. Though I do know a lot of Studio's that send their clients out with garbage and have them thinking it's a hit. does anyone else have a take on this?
